

Remembering Newtown

As we approach the one year anniversary of the violent tragedy at Newtown, let us renew our commitment to pray and take action to overcome a culture of violence.

God, today we are still sifting through the shards of our broken certainties. Gone is the predictable future we thought we knew for ourselves and our children. The world seems more dangerous and unstable than before. May we find amidst this uncertainty those deep convictions and lasting values that are unshakeable, despite the turmoil of the day. And may these constants in our lives remind us of your constancy and your unchanging strength.
